OUR NEIGHBORS

EROZ

When we met Eroz, she had just learned she was pregnant. A single mother living in Sacramento and trying to build the best life for her growing family.

Eroz previously shared, "I've found I am having to decide between keeping the lights on or driving or eating." With the pressure of inflation and increasing expenses, Eroz found River City Food Bank and immediately felt relief.

She is now currently working full time and making enough to feed herself and her new born, with the help of CalFresh. Eroz had struggled to make ends meet and with River City Food Bank she was able to supplement her funds to save for the future.

"The funds I am saving on food today will help me and the stress of rising costs." Eroz knows that she can come to the food bank anytime she needs groceries and use the money she saves to provide for her family.

Julia and German, along with their two young children, made it safely to the United States after escaping Russia under political persecution.

Like many other refugees new to our community, they are starting over with very little and face many barriers to stability. Julia and German heard about River City Food Bank and were relieved to find out that they could pick up healthy groceries for their family without documentation. Not only could they get food to feed their children, they also got much needed diapers and wipes.

They shared that the money saved from purchasing groceries is being used for housing and other necessities, allowing them make a new home in the United States.

Thanks to your compassion and kindness, RCFB can welcome families, like Julia and German's, without barriers or judgment.
